The Wenatchee Rappel Crew does not offer housing; however East Wenatchee/Wenatchee and surrounding areas offer plenty of housing. The average cost is $700-$1000 for a two bedroom one bathroom house. Apartments range from $500 and up for a one bath, one bedroom place. Crewmembers will often get a larger house to help keep costs down.

We are located at Pangborn Memorial Airport in East Wenatchee. The surrounding area offers great recreational opportunities such as hiking, riding, and climbing. The Wenatchee and Okanogan area is also home to abundant rivers and lakes for fishing, boating, rafting and kayaking.

The crew was started in 1971 after the Wenatchee National Forest burned more than 130,000 acres in 1970. The crew used a Bell 205, and had 10 crewmembers with a 9 person back up squad. In 1972 the crew was comprised of Bell 205 and 10 crewmembers. In 1973 the program became rappel capable, and rappelled through 1982. The Forest opted not to rappel from 1983-1987, but a helitack crew remained in Chelan. In 1987 the Forest reinstated rappelling and the crew grew to 14 crewmembers. In 1995 the rappel crew staffed one of the eight National Type 2 helicopters. The crew has since grown to 27-32 people. In 2000, the rappel crew moved from Chelan to East Wenatchee and became the Wenatchee Valley Rappel Crew. Then in 2003 the crew moved into a permanent facility located behind the Wenatchee Fire Cache at Pangborn Airport. The building facilitates the Wenatchee Valley Rappel Crew, Radio Shop and Central Washington Interagency Communications Center (CWICC).
